"Since the beginning, Native Peoples had a life of being in harmony with all that surrounds us. It is a belief that all humans are related to each other. Each has a purpose, spirit and happiness. It is an understanding with the Great Spirit of Creator that we will follow their ways. Not in this understanding we believe we are related to all other living beings."
— Dennis Banks

"Our Native Peoples have been generally portrayed by the media as uncivilized, violent and uneducated. They fought, perhaps, but the struggle for their recognition of rights, and the respect of their traditions, continues to this day. It is time to stop the vilification of people, past and present, and to honor the wisdom, the strength, the courage and the resilience of our Native Peoples."
— Dennis Eastwood

"My father was born in Georgia when I returned the double that the original American Indians were an inferior race. He was perhaps the only nation which lived as a number of independent states in one and his language, customs, and religion were completely different from those of the white man. He was a man of great courage and a man of great faith. He was a man who was not afraid to stand up for his beliefs and to fight for the rights of his people."
— Markle Luther King

"The government of basic material needs is not sufficient to make minority groups and indigenous people feel they are truly part of the greater national unity. For that they have to be confident that they too have an active role to play in shaping the destiny of the state that demands their allegiance."
— Amy Son Day
